

ENVIRONMENTAL LOBBY GETS FIRE-ANTS ELECTED TO CONGRESS

As the world's most disadvantaged minority, a spokesperson for the fire-ants decried the abuse they constantly suffer at the hands of their fellow citizens. It's about time they were represented in congress – the nation's foremost source of endless fertilizer.

They demand further, official recognition and condemnation of the murder of millions of their disadvantaged brothers, sister, and yes, little children, who have been stepped on, hosed down, poisoned and publicly tortured. This abuse has to stop!

Affirmative action for jobs is number two on their action list. They are tired of being ignored and passed over by employers. In addition, all commercial construction must now have ant-ways and special communication systems installed so they can more readily be an accepted part of society.

They also stated they cannot help it that human flesh is their favorite food, it is simply their nature and should not be the source of prejudice in any fair minded society - besides, the little they eat could hardly be missed with all the excess available.

For their part, they promise to eat all the fleas in congress and all the government buildings across the country.

"After all", they said, "we are just normal citizens like the IRS and BATF except for our size". The press conference officially ended with the resounding chorus from the great old song: "Has anyone seen an uncle?"

As they left the room several of the leaders were heard to shout: "One Ant, One Vote!"
